Based on the Friday Sermons and Addresses of Hazrat Khalifatul Masih V (aba)

Part 1: Benevolence Towards p

(Source: Friday Sermon, January 16, 2004)

Overview

Islam places immense importance on showing kindness, respect, and obedience to parents. This duty is emphasized in the Holy Qur'an and further explained through the teachings of the Holy Prophet (saw) and the guidance of Khilafat. Benevolence towards parents is not merely encouraged—it is a fundamental obligation upon every Muslim.

Key Teachings

1. Obligation of Kindness and Respect

- Muslims are commanded to treat their parents with kindness, humility, and respect at all times.
- This includes speaking gently, listening attentively, and serving them willingly.
- The sacrifices made by parents—especially mothers—highlight why they deserve the highest level of care and gratitude.

2. Recognizing the Sacrifices of Parents

- Parents dedicate their lives to raising and nurturing their children.
- Mothers, in particular, endure physical and emotional hardships.

- Understanding these sacrifices should inspire children to respond with love, patience, and service.

3. Responsibility in Old Age

- Caring for elderly parents is a personal responsibility that should not be neglected.
- Delegating their care or avoiding responsibility due to worldly commitments contradicts Islamic teachings.
- Serving parents in their old age is a means of attaining spiritual reward.

4. Continuing Kindness After Their Passing

Benevolence towards parents continues even after their death through:

- Offering prayers for their forgiveness
- Fulfilling their promises and wishes
- Maintaining ties with their relatives and friends

5. Teachings of the Holy Prophet (saw)

- The Holy Prophet (saw) demonstrated exceptional respect for parents and elders.
- He emphasized maintaining kindness even in difficult circumstances.
- His example teaches Muslims to embody humility and gratitude in their behavior.

6. Teachings of the Promised Messiah (as)

- Parents hold a special status due to their role in nurturing and sustaining life.
- Serving them is not an act of charity, but a duty.
- Neglecting parents for worldly status or personal convenience is strongly discouraged.

Key Takeaway

Kindness to parents is a lifelong obligation rooted in gratitude, humility, and love. It is a means of attaining closeness to Allah and spiritual success.

Part 2: Preserving Islamic Values in the Modern World

(Source: Address to Youth, September 8, 2019)

Overview

This address highlights the essential role of loop Ahmadi Muslim youth in preserving Islamic values and strengthening their relationship with Allah. It emphasizes that true success lies in balancing worldly pursuits with spiritual growth and moral excellence.

Key Teachings

1. Prioritizing Faith Over Worldly Matters

- While education, health, and worldly success are important, faith must always remain the top priority.
- True success is achieved by fulfilling the rights of Allah alongside worldly responsibilities.

2. Strengthening the Relationship with Allah

- Salat (prayer) should be offered with sincerity, focus, and understanding.
- Worship should not be seen as a burden, but as an opportunity to connect with Allah.
- Regular remembrance of Allah strengthens faith and provides inner peace.

3. Importance of Religious Knowledge

- Just as effort is made to gain secular education, equal or greater effort should be made to learn about Islam.
- Understanding religious teachings increases spirituality and enables individuals to represent Islam effectively.

4. The Role of Youth in Society

- The moral and spiritual state of youth directly impacts the strength of a nation.
- Youth are responsible for setting a positive example and contributing to the betterment of society.

5. Avoiding Modern-Day Challenges

- Harmful influences such as inappropriate media, social pressures, and immoral behaviors can weaken faith.
- Awareness and self-discipline are necessary to avoid these distractions and remain steadfast.

6. The Concept of Istighfar (Seeking Forgiveness)

- True repentance involves:
 - Recognizing mistakes
 - Seeking forgiveness sincerely
 - Making a firm commitment not to repeat them
- Consistent Istighfar purifies the heart and strengthens one's relationship with Allah.

7. Living with Integrity and Purpose

- Muslims must practice what they preach.
- Honesty, sincerity, and moral consistency are essential qualities.
- A strong character reflects the true teachings of Islam.

Key Takeaway

Spiritual growth, moral integrity, and a strong connection with Allah are essential for personal success and the progress of society.

Part 3: Tabligh with Wisdom and Excellence

(Source: Friday Sermon, September 8, 2017)

Overview

This sermon outlines the principles of effective Tabligh (inviting others to Islam), emphasizing that it must be carried out with wisdom, kindness, and strong moral character.

Key Teachings

1. The Principle of Wisdom (Hikmah)

Tabligh must be conducted with wisdom, which includes:

- Knowledge and understanding
- Clear and logical communication
- Awareness of others' perspectives
- Patience and fairness

2. Communicating with Kindness and Respect

- Discussions should be conducted in a polite and respectful manner.
- Harshness, argumentation, and forcefulness should be avoided.
- Good character enhances the effectiveness of one's message.

3. The Role of Knowledge in Tabligh

- A strong understanding of Islamic teachings is essential.
- Responses should be thoughtful, relevant, and appropriate to the audience.
- Continuous learning is necessary to address questions and misconceptions.

4. Consistency Between Words and Actions

- Actions must reflect beliefs.

- A person who practices their faith sincerely becomes a powerful example for others.
- True influence comes from character, not just speech.

5. Standing Firm on Truth

- While maintaining kindness, Muslims must not compromise on core values.
- It is important to clearly distinguish between right and wrong.
- Wisdom involves both gentleness and firmness when required.

6. Personal Reform as the Foundation of Tabligh

- Self-improvement is essential before guiding others.
- A sincere and righteous individual naturally attracts others toward Islam.
- True Tabligh begins with personal transformation.

Key Takeaway

Effective Tabligh is rooted in wisdom, knowledge, kindness, and personal example. Reforming oneself is the first step toward guiding others.
